

I would like to ask the FCC to continue to regulate broadband service and turn down the current application by Bell South. This is an attempt to quash the small independent service providers who have built and maintained the internet and to turn over their business to the large telecommunications corporations. I would suggest that you have the capacity to continue to be supportive of the smaller independent service market and that this in the best interests of small business and of the health of our free market economy. Thank you, Eric Holmberg MD
